Route 1 Footpath and road

Total distance approx. 2½ miles

This route is part of the Saints' Way, which runs from Padstow to Fowey. It has 16 stiles and a number of steps.

Look out for these waymarkers.

Please keep to the path as it can be muddy depending upon the weather, time of year and the number of livestock in the fields, and crosses areas of old industrial landscape including mined and quarried areas.

Route 2 Road

Total distance approx. 2½ miles

The entire route is on public roads, most of them quiet country lanes that are narrow (mainly single track), winding and steep in places.

The route is well signed throughout as Cycle Route 3. Follow these signs from Luxulyan church through the Luxulyan Valley and on to the Eden Project.

More details of both these routes can be downloaded from the Eden Project website: www.edenproject.com/visiting-eden/directions

RAIL PARTNERSHIP

Visit the Eden Project by train...

...for a great car-free outing, an unforgettable experience in a breathtaking location; a global garden; a place of beauty and wonder.

Take the train on the scenic Atlantic Coast Line to Luxulyan, then follow this map to the Eden Project through 2½ miles of beautiful countryside.

There are two routes, both steep in places; one mainly on quiet country roads, the other following part of the Saints' Way footpath across fields and woodland, with many stiles and a number of steps en route, before joining the road.

The Luxulyan Valley is now a World Heritage Site, and the Friends of Luxulyan Valley publish a booklet containing maps, walks and a history of the area should you wish to explore further.

A more direct, but less scenic car-free way of reaching the Eden Project is to catch the train to St. Austell and take the direct bus from the railway station.
