Eden Project Shop Policy

In the Eden Project shop, we have strict rules on what we sell - all linked to having positive impacts on people and the environment.

If we sell it in our shop, it must tick at least one of these boxes:

Locally produced - to reduce pollution from transporting products and help give people jobs in local businesses.

Made of plants - if made carefully, natural products can be better for the environment than stuff created from plastic or metal.

Recycled - Buying recycled products means that fewer new materials need to be mined from underground, fewer forests are in danger of being chopped down and fewer precious materials are thrown away.

Fairly traded - we like to sell goods when we know the workers were cared for, respected and paid fairly.

Greener lifestyles - we like to sell things that help people live happier, greener, more active lifestyles.

You can find out more about how we source our products here.